D1: WO 00/41061A (CHANG) Dec. 17, 1999 D2: JP 2002-47612 (NOKIA) July 25, 2000

D1 discloses a directionally-mapped, alpha-numeric data entry system comprising a key array which includes at least one set of 'n' redial direction indicator key.

D2 discloses a method for inputting KANA characters by using a software keyboard for inputting characters arranged like the matrix of 10 lines x 5 columns.

1. Novelty (PCT Article 33(2))

The present invention as defined in claims 1-13 is a method for inputting a character using a software keyboard comprising a certain number of blocks, each of capital characters being assigned to the respective blocks and peripheral character block. The subject-matter of said claims is novel under Article 33(2).

2. Inventive Step (PCT Article 33(3))

In the input of a character using a software keyboard as defined in claims 1-3, the mechanism of inputting the character by dragging to a corresponding peripheral character block and the overlapped structure of the capital character block and the peripheral character block can be easily derived from the technical features disclosed in the references. Therefore, an inventive step cannot be acknowledged for the subject matter of the present claims.

3. Industrial Applicability (PCT Article 33(4))
